

PREPARING YOURSELF FOR TREATMENT

Preparing yourself before a treatment is essential for professionalism, hygiene, comfort, and effectiveness. Here's a breakdown of best practices:

Preparing Yourself as an Aesthetic Practitioner

Personal Hygiene and Appearance

- Wash hands thoroughly before, after and during each treatment.
- Wear a clean, professional uniform or appropriate attire.
- Tie back long hair and keep nails short and clean.
- Avoid wearing strong perfumes or heavy jewellery.

Workstation Preparation

- Clean and disinfect all tools and surfaces.
- Set up products and equipment needed for the treatment.
- Ensure a comfortable room temperature and soothing ambiance (lighting, music, scent).

Professional Conduct

- Greet the patient warmly and be punctual.
- Maintain confidentiality and respectful communication.
- Keep calm, composed, and attentive throughout the session.

PREPARING THE PATIENT FOR TREATMENT

Preparing the Client for Treatment

Consultation and Consent

- Conduct a thorough consultation to understand the client's needs, medical history, and skin type.
- Check for contraindications (e.g., allergies, skin conditions, pregnancy).
- Obtain informed consent for the treatment.
- Take pre and post treatment photographs

Client Comfort and Modesty

- Explain the treatment steps clearly.
- Provide appropriate coverings (towels, gowns) to maintain modesty and comfort.
- Ensure the client removes necessary clothing, jewellery, or makeup as required.

Skin Preparation

- Cleanse the treatment area thoroughly.
- Exfoliate or tone if needed based on the procedure.
- Before a skin assessment before proceeding.
